MRS. M'KINLEY IS SAID TO BE DYING AND THE PRESIDENT HAS NOW GIVEN UP ALL HOPE.

Her Life Is Now Hanging By a Thread—Physicians By Her Bedside All the Time—Latest Bulletin From the Sickroom Says She Is Sinking Fast—Launching of the Ohio May Be Postponed.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 16.—At 7 o'clock this morning Dr. Hirschfelder and Dr. Rixey, who has been in attendance all night, were summoned to the bedside of Mrs. McKinley. They are now in consultation with Dr. Rixey, who remained with his patient all night. The result of their conference is expected soon. Until then nothing can be learned as to Mrs. McKinley's condition, though the early hour at which the consulting physicians were called together indicates that she has not improved during the night.

PRESIDENT M'KINLEY IS WITHOUT HOPE.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 16, 10 a. m.—President McKinley is at the bedside of his wife without hope that she will ever recover. After a comparatively easy night she commenced to sink rapidly at 5 o'clock this morning. Dr. Rixey, who has been in attendance all night, was alarmed owing to the sinking spell at 5 o'clock, and nothing definite could be learned. Later it was learned by the Associated Press that Mrs. McKinley was barely alive and was liable to expire at any moment.

STREETS NEAR HOME ARE CLOSED.

The Scott mansion is on the crest of a high hill overlooking Lafayette Square, and there is very little traffic in that neighborhood. When it became known how dangerously ill Mrs. McKinley was even the few vehicles that pass that way stopped and the streets on all sides of the house were kept free from noise.

LAUNCHING MAY BE POSTPONED.

It is very probable that the local committees having in charge arrangements for entertainments and banquets constantly during the night.

THE END IS APPROACHING.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 16, 10:30 a. m.—The President was with Mrs. McKinley at that hour indicated that the end was approaching.

PEOPLE GATHER NEAR THE HOME.

The distressing news was spread rapidly over the city and crowds gathered about the newspaper bulletin boards anxiously awaiting further information. About the house on the hill where Mrs. McKinley lies groups of people gathered and discussed in low tones the illness of the President's wife. Everybody who left the house was eagerly questioned for information, but everybody was referred to Secretary Cortelyou, to the President and to the visitors from Ohio who will have been notified of the extremely critical character of her illness.

At his request all relatives and friends have been notified of the extremely critical character of her illness. She is unconscious most of the time and is just hovering between life and death. Artificial heart stimulants have been resorted to, and three physicians are in constant attendance.

Thousands of telegrams have been received, not only from all parts of the country, but from all over the world. As far as possible they are being answered with the information that Mrs. McKinley's condition is very critical. At 10 o'clock Mrs. Morse, the President's niece, arrived at the house. Everything at that hour indicated that the end was approaching.

DID NOT IMPROVE DURING THE NIGHT.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 16.—The Associated Press has just learned that Mrs. McKinley's life hangs by a thread and that she is liable to expire at any moment.

MRS. M'KINLEY HAS ANOTHER SINKING SPELL.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 16.—Secretary Cortelyou has given the Associated Press the following bulletin:

"At 9 o'clock the doctors report Mrs. McKinley's condition is not so favorable, she having had a sinking spell at 5 o'clock this morning. There will not be another official bulletin until noon. President McKinley has cancelled every engagement for the day."

WAITING FOR MRS. M'KINLEY TO PASS AWAY.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 16.—Mrs. William McKinley, the first lady of the land, has passed into the shadow of death. All that human sympathy and human sympathy can do is being done to prolong her life, but the end is likely to occur at any moment. Until the last breath is drawn, until the last flutter of the shivering pulse, medical science will not give up the fight.

PRESIDENT WAITING.

The President, an inspiring example of mortal devotion, is ever at the bedside and three doctors have been in almost constant attendance during the past twenty-four hours. They have not given up all hope of the recovery of the stricken patient. They have done all that medical science can do to save the President's life, which now hangs by a thread, but they despair of his recovery.

CROWDS WAITING.

From Lafayette Square, opposite the Scott residence, sympathetic crowds watch the house with saddened faces. Members of the crowd come and go, dreading to hear, when they reach the door, that the wife of the President has breathed her last.

Tearing softly, the members of the household pass in and out, their faces telling plainly the grief and concern that they feel. For the moment, the whole nation anxiously awaits some cheering news from the sick room and none comes.

ALL PLANS OFF.

Early in the day it was decided that all functions planned in honor of the President and the members of his cabinet in this city today would not be held. The President announced that he would not be able to leave the house, owing to the critical condition of Mrs. McKinley, whose present release dates from 5 o'clock this morning.

During the night the attending physicians, Drs. Gibbons, Hirschfelder and Rixey, thought they saw some encouraging signs in the condition of the patient. The dysentery, which was one of the most alarming developments of the case, the doctors had been able to check, but at 5 o'clock this morning there was a change for the worse. One of those dangerous sinking spells, from which Mrs. McKinley has suffered intermittently during the fatal tour across the continent, came upon her. In alarm the physicians awoke the President, who was trying to catch a few moments' needed rest, and he hurried to the bedside of his stricken wife. Since this last attack Mrs. McKinley's condition has been such that few hopes of her recovery can be entertained.

PLANS DOWN.

There was no flag flying from the Scott residence today. The decorations of the city streets appear to be in a mockery, while death hovers over the lady of the White House.

The nervous strain and lack of sleep during the past two days are beginning to tell on President McKinley. This afternoon his face looked haggard and worn. He does not remain away from Mrs. McKinley's side except for a few minutes at a time and cannot be induced to rest.

In front of the Scott residence at Clay and Laguna streets a scattering few kept vigil all through the day, night, and when the sun came this morning cheered and warmed the scene the eager watchers increased into the hundreds.

GREAT SYMPATHY.

A sympathy as great as the enthusiasm with which President McKinley was received here has been shown today by the waiting throng for the stricken woman and distressed husband. To them no definite or satisfying news has come. They have been waiting for news, but they have not received it. They have been waiting for news, but they have not received it.

home may relieve their fears or confirm their worst suspicions.

BATTLE FOR LIFE.

There has been much during the morning hours to keep alive and even better the four doctors. Mrs. McKinley is battling against an unquenchable summons. Early in the morning General Shafter was driven hastily to the place. He alighted and sent in his name at the front door, but turned away a few moments later upon receiving word from within that the President begged to be excused. It was not an hour in which an official or friendly call could have been made.

The veteran soldier turned sadly back to his carriage, refusing to explain what intimation had been given him, and was driven away.

Soon afterward a carriage drawn by two galloping horses turned sharply into Laguna street from Jackson and rushed frantically up the hill, the colored coachman applying the lash to his team. It was Mr. and Mrs. George Morse, relatives of the McKinley family, and they were both admitted at once.

MRS. MORSE WEEPS.

It did not take the anxious, fear-stricken crowd long to learn that Mr. and Mrs. Morse had been suddenly summoned from their home by Secretary Cortelyou. That Mrs. Morse had wept bitterly on the way to the Scott home, and that they had entered their carriage without a moment's delay, instructing the driver to reach the Scott home in the quickest time possible, was common knowledge.

HOPE IS ABANDONED.

This incident served to convince the majority of sorrowing citizens without that hope had been abandoned, and that Mrs. McKinley's sinking spell at 5 o'clock had put her beyond the pale of rescue.

The deep respect, the impossible sorrow and the ever-growing fear of the approaching end without was displayed in the absolute silence they maintained. People a block away from the place talked to each other in whispers.

At noon Secretary Cortelyou gave out another bulletin. It was to the effect that Mrs. McKinley was not improving, but was very low.

An order was at once given out that no weapons be allowed to drive past the house from any direction, and the police on duty are carrying out the instruction.

Colonel George Stone of the Republican State Central Committee hurried to the house before noon, but was not admitted. Chief of Police Sullivan also called but was not received. The President has devoted himself to any and all calls.

PRESIDENT IS WATCHING FOR END

SAN FRANCISCO, May 16.—At 11:30 a. m. the attending physicians were in consultation and they believe there is still a bare chance for Mrs. McKinley to rally. Her lack of reserve strength, however, makes her ability to rally extremely doubtful.

The President is at her bedside, and the ladies of the cabinet, with Mr. and Mrs. Morse and Mr. and Mrs. Scott, are in the adjoining room.

Secretary Hitchcock and Postmaster General Smith are in the parlor below awaiting things from the sick room.

HER CONDITION STILL CONTINUES TO BE GRAVE.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 16.—At 11:45 p. m. Secretary Cortelyou made the following statement:

"The physicians have been most busy of the morning with Mrs. McKinley and report that, while she has had no relapse during the morning, her condition continues grave. She is not suffering, but is very weak."

PRESIDENT SENDS A MESSAGE TO THE OLD HOME.

CANTON, Ohio, May 16.—It was learned this morning at the residence of Mrs. Marshall Barber, Mrs. McKinley's sister, that the news of Mrs. McKinley's serious illness, conveyed to the family by a telegram yesterday afternoon from the President, came as a surprise. The last word heard personally by Mrs. Barber, the mother of Miss Mary Barber, who is accompanying the Presidential party, was in a letter from her daughter, telling of the visit at El Paso.

In this it was said that Mrs. McKinley was improving in health and had said at El Paso that she had never felt better. Shortly before noon today Mrs. Marshall Barber received a telegram from the President saying:

"I am rallied from sinking spell which she had at 5 o'clock this morning, and while now fairly comfortable she is critically ill."

MRS. M'KINLEY WEAK.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 16.—At 1:30, although no official bulletin had been issued, it was learned that Mrs. McKinley's condition was unchanged.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 16, 1:15 p. m.—At 1:15 Secretary Cortelyou stated that there had been no change in Mrs. McKinley's condition. She is still very weak.

SHE IS CONSCIOUS.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 16, 2:30 p. m.—At 2:30 Secretary Cortelyou stated to the Associated Press that there had been no material change in Mrs. McKinley's condition. She was conscious at that time, but extremely weak.

PRESIDENT TAKES A WALK.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 16.—At 3 p. m. President McKinley left the Scott residence, accompanied by Secretaries Smith, Wilson and Hitchcock, for a short walk in the open air. He strolled through Lafayette Square. He stopped for a few seconds to talk to Dr. Stevens, rector of the Central M. E. Church, Dr. Hirschfelder of the Central M. E. Church, and Joseph E. Stubbs, president of the University of Nevada. President McKinley gave the newspaper representatives a cordial greeting, but his carerown face clearly showed the ordeal which he is going through.

MRS. M'KINLEY IS SHADE BETTER.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 16.—3:25 p. m.—President McKinley returned to the Scott residence after having been out for less than ten minutes. In answer to a query regarding Mrs. McKinley's health, he said:

"Mrs. McKinley is holding her own. We believe she is a shade better than she was at noon."

SOLDIERS CHARGE THE ALBANY MOB.

ALBANY, N. Y., May 16.—Promptly at 5 o'clock this morning the United Traction Company began preparations to move its cars. General Barnes, in command of the Twenty-third Regiment, brought out before the crowd, just as they reached them there was a quick reverse of the guns and the bullets smashed against human bodies. WITH A HOWL THE CROWD STARTED BACK, SOME WITH BLOODY FACES AND SOME WITH BROKEN BONES. THE MOB WAS NOT ALLOWED TO STOP UNTIL IT HAD BEEN DRIVEN THREE BLOCKS AWAY. Then every side street for blocks around was cleared and details began closing up the sidewalks. In two corners soldiers found surly groups and in one the soldiers had to club the men with their rifles.

CHARGED THE MOB.

One company of the Twenty-third, Company A, started to clear out the mob massed at the curve on Central avenue. Persuasion was of no avail, and back went the company a dozen paces. "Charge bayonets!" shouted Lieutenant Colonel Brady, who was near by. Down went the gleaming points and on a rush the men started for the crowd. Just as they reached them there was a quick reverse of the guns and the bullets smashed against human bodies. WITH A HOWL THE CROWD STARTED BACK, SOME WITH BLOODY FACES AND SOME WITH BROKEN BONES. THE MOB WAS NOT ALLOWED TO STOP UNTIL IT HAD BEEN DRIVEN THREE BLOCKS AWAY. Then every side street for blocks around was cleared and details began closing up the sidewalks. In two corners soldiers found surly groups and in one the soldiers had to club the men with their rifles.

ORDERED NOT TO FIRE.

General Barnes then ordered windows in the houses closed. Usually a rifle pointed was sufficient, but in one or two cases details had to enter the houses and close them. The women daying them. All the time inside the bare doors were five open cars ready manned with non-uniform men waiting the word to run out. On each car were two motormen, two conductors and two Pinkerton detectives. The latter with banded rifles in their hands.

"The men are ordered not to fire except it is absolutely necessary," said Superintendent Farnett of the road.

FIRST CAR OUT.

At 8:30 o'clock the first car emerged from the barn and rounded the curve to the spot where the crowd had wrecked two others Tuesday. General Barnes was on the car. When it reached the obstructions a coupling was made and the damaged cars sent down Broadway to the barn. The crowd was too far distant to even see the operation, and if a window were up a guardman soon shut it with an order.

While this was going on, the street corners along the State street route began to assume the conditions of military posts. Details of soldiers in every prominent square kept people moving so that no large crowd could gather.

At 9:30 a second car left the stable and started over toward Madison avenue, a thoroughfare not guarded. On board of it were Lieutenant Colonel Brady and a company of the Twenty-third guarding the two motormen and conductors. They proceeded over the quiet street line, stopping to remove obstructions from the track. The car was an open one.

MILITIA ON CARS.

When the road officials were ready to move a car, word was sent to Colonel Lloyd, in command of the Second Regiment at Northern Albany, and he immediately began placing his men along Broadway at points where the trouble was feared.

It was 10 o'clock before the first car reached the last of the obstructions, and then it was run up to the end of the line. Meanwhile the company can see seven other cars and get them ready for business. On each was a full company of militia. There was hardly a ripple of excitement as the cars moved down the hill to the end of the car line. Up to the time the various cars reached the foot of State street no serious trouble had occurred and there were no great crowds at any point. Evidently the great display of military force and the way the crowds were handled and awe of the military element.

CARS ARE RUNNING.

As the numerous cars kept coming down the hill the crowd near the perfection increased in numbers and began to be excited. The military charged upon the crowd and drove them two blocks away from the junction of State and Broadway. The cars ran up the roadway as far as the company's barn, and although there were several thousand people, the demonstration was limited to forcing those on the cars.

Following the procession of cars the police were guarded by several mounted squadrons and came down the street and turned up Broadway, where there was some replying to be done. The United Traction Company has added

BLACK BART JOURNALISM.

The matter of providing funds for keeping the High Schools open is pressing for an early settlement. No other way of getting the money has been presented, save the acceptance of Mr. Dingee's offer to donate it on condition that the city pay its back water bills without prejudice to either party in the pending water suit. As the city owes the money, and as the proposition of the Water Company is to accept for this particular payment the rates fixed in the ordinance now being litigated, it is difficult to see how the most obvious could find fault with the acceptance of Mr. Dingee's offer, which cannot be regarded by some and honest minds as other than a timely and generous contribution to the cause of education, especially as it permits the city to reserve its legal rights by stipulation.

However, the $55,000 organ is doing all it can to prevent the acceptance of the offer made by Mr. Dingee. It has labored incessantly, directly and indirectly, to throw obstacles in the way of making an arrangement which involves a clear gift to the city of many thousands of dollars at a critical moment. The organ well knows that the High and Central Schools must close in the event of failure, and the teachers will be compelled to go without their money. Apparently its course is dictated by a desire to see the schools closed. Its object is to create all the disturbance it can, and provoke every complication possible. It had much rather see the schools closed than to have them kept open by a contribution from the Water Company. In carrying on its mere money war against the corporation it has no regard for public interests, for the good name of the city, the welfare of the students, nor the rights of the teachers. It is out with all the dynamite at its command to fight the Water Company regardless of all considerations save that of gaining its ends.

It openly advocates confiscation, and endeavors to make people believe that the city can evade the payment of its water bills. It is encouraging Auditor Reed to compel a resort to the courts to enforce an agreement which is practically an acceptance of money presented as a gift to run the schools. The city has no money to give the High Schools and Mr. Dingee offers to give it, but the $55,000 organ represents this offer is an endeavor to get out of the treasury money to which the Water Company is not entitled. The city has used the water and not paid for it. The rates were applied by the organ as the proper thing, but now it seeks that the city need not pay its bills and may be able to confiscate the property of the Water Company. The ball statement of this program carries its own commentary. It is worthy of Black Bart, and is an adaptation of his moral standard of public policy.

A CREDIT TO OAKLAND.

While the unavoidable absence of the President is keenly disappointing, Oaklanders can take a just pride in the way the program for his reception was carried out. Notwithstanding the failure of the Chief Magistrate to appear, because of detention by the bedside of a dangerously ill wife, the original economies incident to the reception were carried out to the letter. There was no hitch anywhere. This was due to the carefully planned preparations of the committee, of which Elson Adams was chairman. The city was decorated in a tasteful and fitting manner, and the crowds were well ordered and a thoroughly handled. There were no accidents or unpleasant incidents anywhere. All this is creditable to the city and complimentary to the committee. Our distinguished guests were greatly pleased at the manner in which they were received, and were unstinted in their praise of the perfect arrangements. Secretary Hay personally complimented Mr. Adams, saying that the Oakland reception was the best managed of all the public affairs they had attended during their trip. This is gratifying. It shows what Oakland can do when an effort is really made. In this instance the committee deserves the hearty thanks of the entire community. Although the universal wish was to see the President, there was no lack of distinction and tact among the visitors. In addition to Secretaries Hay, Long, Smith, Hitchcock and Wilson, there were Governor Gage, General Shafter and Admiral Melville, and the marines were commanded by Major Myers, the officer who defended the American legation in Peking during the awful days of the Boxer siege. Our visitors were worthy of their reception.

FOUNDER'S DAY OBSERVED
AT ST. MARY'S COLLEGE.Priests From All Over the County
Attend Services at the Noted
Institution.

The feast of St. John Baptist de la Salle was befittingly celebrated yesterday at St. Mary's College by a high mass at 9:30 o'clock, followed by an informal banquet, at which a large number of the students and their friends were present.

The feast of St. John Baptist de la Salle, the founder of the Brothers of Christian Schools, has been fixed by a decree of canonization for May 15th, and yesterday it was celebrated in almost every Catholic institution of learning. It was founder's day.

At St. Mary's yesterday those who officiated were graduates of the college. Rev. P. T. Callaghan of the class of '94 acted as celebrant. Rev. Joseph McLaughlin, '90, as deacon, and Rev. E. J. Nolan, '91, as sub-deacon. Rev. J. J. Cramwell, the college chaplain, acted as master of ceremonies.

Among those who occupied seats in the sanctuary were: Rev. Fathers Serra of Sacred Heart Church, Temescal; McSwainy of St. Francis de Sales Church, McNally of St. Patrick's Church, Foley of Alameda; Casey of St. Peter's Church, San Francisco; Rev. Harrington, O. P., of St. Dominic's, San Francisco; Rev. Smith, C. S. P., of St. Mary's, San Francisco; Rev. Gallagher, S. J., St. Mary's; Rev. Hickey, S. J., St. Ignatius; Rev. Draught, Sacred Heart, Temescal; Rev. Kiley, St. Patrick's, West Oakland; Rev. Bull, St. Francis de Sales; Rev. de Campos, St. Joseph's Church; Rev. O'Connell, St. Joseph's, Alameda; Rev. O'Riordan and Campbell of Berkeley.

The choir consisted of Prof. F. Schuchert, organist; tenors, J. P. Plover, J. W. Solon, W. J. Kennedy; baritone, Rev. Brother Agnon, R. S. McCarthy, basses, J. A. Blossom, A. T. Porter.

After the mass there was an informal luncheon, at which speeches were made by Rev. Brother Theodorus, Rev. Father L. Serra and Brother Brundage.

John Baptist de la Salle, familiarly known as the apostle of popular education, was born at Rheims, April 30, 1651, of a noble family, originally from Beauvais. His parents placed the honor of the family rather in the practice of Christian virtue than in nobility of descent. Their eldest son was baptized on the very day of his birth and named John Baptist.

From his tenderest years the boy manifested wonderful natural inclinations to virtue—inclinations which, far from diminishing, became stronger as time went by. A child predestined to holiness, he was particularly fond of reading the lives of the saints and seeking therein a model for imitation.

About the age of 9 he began to attend school. Here he gave unmistakable evidence of the qualities of mind and heart that adorned his later years. He applied himself no less to the acquisition of virtue than to the study of letters, and he did both with an earnestness and success which made him a model for his schoolmates and caused him to surpass the most sanguine expectations of his professors. The precocity of his talent, the soundness of his judgment and his love of study gave rise to the brightest hopes. His father was for making him a magistrate; but, when questioned on the matter, young De La Salle thought otherwise. He expressed a lively desire to devote himself exclusively to the service of the Lord. Though his pious parents saw their prospects thwarted, yet they were too sincerely submissive to the decrees of Providence and loved their son with a love too pure and enlightened to oppose the noble inclinations of his heart. They gave their consent, which was received with joyful gratitude.

He received the subdiaconate at Cambrai on Trinity Eve, 1672. In 1677 he received the diaconate at Paris, and at the age of 27 he was elevated to the priesthood in the cathedral of Rheims, April 9, 1678. In March, 1679, Mm. Maillefer, a friend of Fr. Barny, sent Mr. Nigel to found a school for boys at Rheims. Mr. Nigel, on his arrival, consulted the religious, who had recently profited by the counsels of La Salle. The latter kindly lent his concurrence to the new work. In a few months two schools were opened, the one in the Parish of St. Maurice; the other in that of St. James. La Salle provided for the lodging of the teachers. He soon became their adviser, in a short while their spiritual director, and later received them into his own dwelling. In 1682, quitting the commodious abode of his ancestors, he moved into Rue Neuve, a building, to which he retired with the teachers and a few poor priests, who lived in a community under his direction.

In 1685 he resigned the canonry—by this measure destroying, as far as possible, the social barrier which separated him from his disciples. In 1684 he distributed his patrimony among the famishing poor of Rheims and abandoned himself wholly to the keeping of Divine Providence. On May 25th of the same year, the feast of the Holy Trinity, the Saint called together the first general assembly, the Brothers of the Christian Schools—and the custom nowadays so highly respected and so well known in many lands. For the following thirty-five years, through trials the severest and most prolonged, De La Salle consecrated his every thought, word and deed to the work of Christian education.

In 1865 upon an invitation from the parish priest of St. Maurice, he went to Paris; three years later, the infant institute counted in the capital city two schools, six teachers and four hundred and twenty pupils. De La Salle died April 7, 1741, at St. Yon. At his death the Saint left twenty-two flourishing communities and a complete organization with rules drawn up in detail. Authorized by letters patent in 1725, approved by Rome in 1726, administered by eminent superiors such as Brothers Timothy and Agathon, the institute counted, in 1890, one hundred and twenty-seven houses—six in foreign countries—one thousand Brothers and thirty-six thousand pupils.

A COMPARISON.

I'd rather lay out here among the trees,
With the singing birds and the humbees,
A-knocking that I can do as I please,
Than to live what folks call a life of ease.

Up thar in the city.

For I really don't 'actly understand
Where the comfort is for any man
In walkin' hot bricks and usin' a fan,
And enjoyin' himself as he says he can.

Up thar in the city.

It's kinder lonesome, mebbe you'll say,
A-livin' out here day after day
In this kinder easy, careless way,
But an hour out here's better'n a day.

Up thar in the city.

As for that, just look at the flowers around'
A-peepin' their heads up all over the ground,
And the fruit a-bendin' the trees way down;
You don't find such things as these in town,

Or, rather in the city.

As I said afore, sech things as these—
The flowers, the birds and the bun'l bees—
And a-livin' out here among the trees,
Where you c'n take your ease an' do's you please,
Make it better'n the city.

Now, all the talk don't want to snuff
'Bout this kinder life a-ben' rough;
An' I'm sure it's plenty good enough,
An' 'tween you and me, 'tain't as tough

As livin' in the city.

MRS. MCKINLEY IS DYING.

Nation Will Grieve
With the President.

EDITORIAL.

The distressing news has just been sent forth that Mrs. McKinley, the beloved wife of the President, is passing into the shadow of death with no hope of recovery. This mournful intelligence will cause a profound shock and excite the deepest sympathy for the illustrious man who stands with bowed head in the presence of a great grief. This whole country will be sad, but here in California a sharper pang will be felt because the Presidential tour which began with such auspicious gladness should end here in such sorrow. The heart of the whole people goes out to the President in the hour of his affliction. He has been the tenderest of husbands. Only a few days ago Mrs. McKinley paid a touching tribute to his lifelong devotion. For twenty-five years she has been an invalid, but the President's tenderness and devotion only increased with her infirmity. No excitement, however pressing, could hold him from her side. He always snatched time from the cares of an unusually active and busy political life to pay her the most attentions. His devoted and unflinching love for his wife has been one of the most admired traits in President McKinley's character. All who came within his family circle felt an almost reverential respect for him because of the wealth of unselfish tenderness he lavished on his sick wife.
Mrs. McKinley was a noble woman, richly deserving the treasure of love that was hers. If her husband idolized her, she adored him. Her love, sympathetic nature responded to the generous enthusiasm of his gifted mind. She gloried in his successes, and encouraged him under defeat. Her supreme confidence in his powers and the wisdom of his judgments was never shaken. During the years when he was slowly and tollingly making his way, she was his assistant and comforter, a helpmeet for a noble man such as only the truest type of American womanhood supplies.
Her death will be universally regretted because of her many excellent qualities and her splendid example of self-sacrificing, widely affectionate. It will be doubly mourned because it bereaves one whom the Nation loves and honors, and breaks the bond of a conjugal constancy as rare as it is beautiful and enduring.

WAS DRUNK AND HAD BEEN TWICE STABBED.

C. M. Fenton, a dayman, was arrested by Policeman McSorley at Eighth and Washington streets shortly after 1 o'clock this morning. The man was lying on the sidewalk and drunk. When placed in the patrol wagon Fenton was found to be bleeding. He was taken to the Receiving Hospital, where it was discovered that Fenton had been twice stabbed in the back. The wounds were evidently made by a penknife. After having his injuries dressed, Fenton was taken to the City Prison, but his condition was such that he was unable to appear in the Police Court this forenoon to plead to a charge of drunkenness, and his case was continued to May 17th to plead. Fenton declares he does not remember how or when he was stabbed.

EMPLOYERS MAY MAINTAIN A BLACKLIST.

Important Decision Is Rendered in New York Today.

Associated Press Dispatches by The Tribune Special Leased Wire. CHICAGO, May 16.—In the Superior Court today Judge Baker decided that it is legal for employers to maintain a blacklist. The ruling was in the case of Annie Condon against Luby, McNeill & Luby, Armour & Co. and other stock yards packing firms. The plaintiff was a labeler and can painter in the employ of the Luby firm, and in February, 1900, in company with a number of other young women, went on strike because of repeated reductions in wages.
After the women tried to obtain employment with other firms, but their applications were rejected on account of their having been with strikers.
Miss Condon began suit as a test, and the court ruled that the various firms had a right to take protective measures against persons who had quit the employment of other firms without valid reasons.
This is the first time in a Western court that the so-called "blacklist" by which an employer who leaves one firm is kept out of employment in his or her trade by any other firms, has been given legal standing by the courts.

The trial of "Sailor Bob" Bryan, the second of the nine defendants, will begin at once and the other cases will be rapidly disposed of.

"Mr. Edson P. Adams, Chairman Executive Committee, McKinley Reception—Dear Sir: I wish to express to you, and to the very worthy members of your various committees, my most cordial thanks and full appreciation of the admirable and systematic manner in which the reception to President McKinley was planned and conducted, and feel assured that I am expressing the sentiments of the citizens of Oakland when I say that the parade and the most systematic, orderly and well conducted parade that was ever held in the city of Oakland.
"Great credit should be given the heads of your committees for the good judgment and personal attention given in carrying out the details of their assignments. It would be difficult for me to mention any one when all took so much pride and interest in making the reception a grand success. Many private residences, public buildings and business houses were beautifully decorated, and the streets and sidewalks clean. The good order and discipline of the people was most remarkable, considering the great throngs in attendance. The beautiful decorations, clean streets and good order of the parade were appreciated and commented upon by our honored guests, one of whom remarked that it was the most perfect in all respects of any place they had previously visited.
"I wish to particularly thank and commend Chief of Police S. C. Hodgkins and his able officers for the perfect order maintained at all points along the line of parade, and discipline throughout the city.
"I also wish to thank Superintendent of Streets Charles P. Ott and his assistants for the excellent condition of the main streets and thoroughfares of the city.

"ANSON BARSTOW,
"Mayor of the City of Oakland."
